Description

A seventeenth century farmhouse which first became the Lenton Coffee House and then the White Hart, was expanded into the building we have today by George Wombwell in 1804. One of the outbuildings was used as the privately run debtors prison of the ancient Peverel Court until 1842 when the prison was relocated to Radford Workhouse on St. Peter's Street (Whitworth 2010). Note the stone mounting blocks on the pavement by the Gregory Street door, which perhaps suggests well-to-do patronage in the past.
