Local List Proposal

Description

Hardwick Dawson and Dickinson submitted plans in 1968. Established in 1885 Hopewells are Nottingham's longest established furniture retailer. In 1966 an extensive site on Huntingdon Street and Great Freeman Street was taken on a 99 year lease from Nottingham City Corporation. Huntingdon Street was already earmarked for development, so the new store would be in the hub of the city. It took a further seven years before the store was up and running and another three years for the warehousing completed in 1976. Built in a striking 1960s style with original fixtures and fittings.
