Local List Proposal

Description

Crossing the road again we see Nos 52&54 (137&138) behind a wall, beyond the derilict land. One would be forgiven for thinking they were modern houses since appalling conversions have almost totally destroyed any semblance of their cottage origins. Fortunately we have black and white photos (over) which show how, in 1983, they still had substantial gardens in the front and rear, and the coloured photo of 1990 (over) showing original brickwork, on No 52 though No54 has had the chimney removed and been rendered. In the centre is a blanked out window, this appears to have been a piece of decoration (and is also used in Nos 131&133).

Additional Description:

Originally (SC) this pair of cottages had kitchen and parlour downstairs and two bedrooms upstairs. However they had the great advantage of having an attic, so providing an additional bedroom. (They were in fact very similar to the pair of semi-detached cottages on the other side of the road No111,
