Description

The former (lower) graveyard of St Nicholas' Church. Despite landscaping/hardscaping works in the 20th century, human remains are preserved within the site (which is now used as a car park). Human remains found during recent works to extend the car park. Evidence that there are further remains below the car park.

Former St Nicholas's graveyard

Local Heritage Asset Register

Castle HA624

Additional Description:

The former (lower) graveyard of St Nicholas' Church. Late 19th century Ordnance Survey maps label it as a graveyard. Later maps do not label this piece of land. Landscaping/ hardscaping appears to have taken place in the 1940s or 1950s, with further works in the 1980s. However, human remains are demonstrably preserved within the site (and were encountered during works in January 2019). The church is of 12th century foundation, though it is unknown when this graveyard began to be used.
